The author argues for acceptance of the geographical environment as the basic object of study in geography.
This environment is defined as nature that has undergone change as a result of man's activities. The author contends that some Soviet geographers still base their views on the now outmoded Stalinist definition of the geographical environment as the "environment surrounding man" or "external nature." According to

DESCRIPTORS: *Geography, Geographers

The article is a reply to a letter that appeared in Soviet Geography, January 1963, pp. 60-62, accusing Saushkin of having given a misleading picture of Soviet economic geography in his article in the American journal Economic Geography, 1962, No. 1. Saushkin rejects the charges that he gave a one-sided and impoverished picture of the Soviet discipline, that he minimized Lenin's (Earth Sciences--Geography, TT, v. 11, no. 3) (over)
